

Analysis of a continuous car following model for a bus route

H Huijberts

Queen Mary & Westfield College
London, UK

Abstract

In this talk, we study the synchronous motions (motions for which each of the buses moves with a constant velocity) of a car-following mode for a circular bus route. Different types of synchronous motion are identified, and their local stability is studied using root locus methods.